

There's a lot more to the web than just websites

The internet is revolutionising business, offering new efficiencies across the board. As a web-based system, Contact Anywhere can deliver these efficiencies, support your business processes and provide high visibility and control of your marketing and sales activities.

Contact Anywhere – a great tool for businesses in general...

- Centralised data and reporting
- Same system used across your business
- No costly servers or software
- Quick and easy to set up
- Increased emarketing capability

With Contact Anywhere, every email in an emarketing campaign is linked to a contact record. So as well as being able to access campaign summaries, users can also see exactly who opened each email, at what time, whether it was opened more than once and much more. In other words, with Contact Anywhere you can send 10,000 emails and know which 50 people to call right away!

“We spent £130 on emarketing with Anywhere SG and generated 135 sales.”

...and a great tool for website developers in particular.

As a website developer you can embed Contact Anywhere seamlessly into any website. This means you can now offer your clients a new level of online functionality – for example the capability of registering details online or logging in to access specific information.

What's more you don't have to worry about how the service works. We'll take care of all of the hosting, backups, upgrades and data security.

“The total service provided by Anywhere SG has been of real benefit to the effectiveness of my business.”
